

NOVEMBER 2006

Bringing Parents and Kids Together

WISH LIST

50+ Toys and Gift

WRITTEN BY WENDY SMOLEN, MAIJA JOHNSON, AND BARBARA HUBER | PHOTOGRAPHED BY WENDELL T. WEBBER

ARTISTS IN RESIDENCE

Art is one way your child interprets the world

Before you start shopping, know this: There are lots of perfect gifts. We've spent the past nine months looking at the newest toys, gadgets, clothing, and books, and flipping over tons of them. Our kid testers helped wittle our list to 50+ great ideas. Our advise when shopping for your own kids: Focus on there fave interests and you'll always be right. Is she an animal lover? Spring for a life-size pony or go wild with a leopard-printed clogs. Know a builder? Choose soft blocks or a hard-core train set. For tough-to-buy-for tweens, nothing beats a gift certificate that looks like a credit card. Our gift to you: an edited version of what's new, fun, fabulous, age-appropriate, and priced to please. Start—and finish shopping here.

Moon Sand

Reusable sand feels like dough but molds as easily as beach sand. Now kids can build castles anywhere.

Spin Master Ltd.
3+, $19.99
spinmaster.com

