

The Washington Post

Tuesday, February 28, 2006

KidsPost

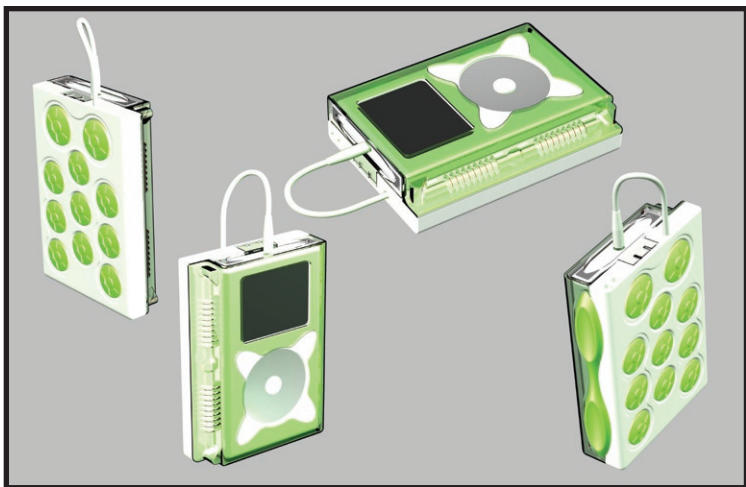

Here's a Look at This Year's Coolest Play Things

Every year, the biggest and best toy makers get together in New York to show off their newest creations. The event is called Toy Fair, and it's like a toy store that's the size of five football fields -- but just about everything on display is brand new! Could you go into a toy store and pick just one item that you think is the absolute best? It's a tough challenge, but that's what Kids Post's Margaret Webb Pressler tried to do at Toy Fair. She found a dozen standout items among thousands of new toys. Some aren't in stores yet, but this will give you something to look forward to!

Air Hogs Hydro Freak

Here's the latest and greatest in R/C vehicles: It speeds on land or water -- then takes off into the air from either surface. We didn't think we could be impressed by another R/C contraption, but we were! (Spin Master, $99.99, available in fall, ages 10 and older.)

MixTools iDrum

Slip your iPod into this hard plastic case and use the drum pad on the back to add beats and riffs to the music. It's like making your own remix!

(Spin Master, $29.99, coming this fall, ages 8 and older.)

Moon Sand

This fake sand is the perfect texture for building sand castles indoors. Bake your creation in the oven to make it hard. Bake it again to mush it up.

(Spin Master, $5-$20, available in fall, for all ages.)